

How to Require Company Emails in Form Submissions

Last Modified on 06/23/2026 1:44 pm EDT

If you want to require "work emails" for a specific Campaign, you can prevent submissions from personal emails at common free inboxes, like Gmail, Yahoo, and Hotmail.

This can be done with Digioh App #78: Block Free Email Providers. To add this app to your account, follow these steps:

1) Go to Profile>Custom JavaScript apps.

Block Free Domains

Enter your email address

Finally, publish your widget. From now on, users won't be able to submit personal email addresses.

This process assumes that you are using the native email field in your form. If you are using a Custom Field for email, set the `block_free_mail_domains` at the Field Level instead of at the page level. For more information, see How do I configure Metadata?

This app also supports "inline" error message types, that show below the form field rather than in a bubble at the top of the campaign. Configure this in the Form > Inputs tab.
